

Contract talks stalled

60 city employees take 'personal day'

Some 60 city employees affiliated with the Teamsters' union failed to show up for work last Tuesday, leaving most department shorthanded.

Members of the city's bargaining team and the Teamsters have been unable to hammer out a new contract and, according to union representative, George Semko, the "no show" was an attempt to get talks into high gear.

"Our people have personal and sick days coming to them," Semko said, "and they took them. That's all there was to it. We feel waiting a year for a contract is long enough."

Mayor William Oakley said "that it was unfortunate the union members had to resort to that kind of strategy when our teams are still talking."

"But I will have to say this that it was well organized on their part," Mayor Oakley continued. "Out of 65 employees, only one union person showed up for work."

"I personally feel that it is very unfortunate that they would walk out like that and cost themselves one of their personal days."

The mayor stressed that the city and the union have "a letter of agreement" to continue to work during contract negotiations "and that either party has the right to end that agreement with a 7-day notice of termination intent."

"They're working on a weekly basis while the negotiations are being carried on," Mayor Oakley added. "However, I am not directly involved in those negotiations. Our negotiation team is made up of an attorney and key personnel, and there is a state mediator sitting in on these talks."

"And I'm waiting for our negotiators to come back with some sort of recommendations so that I can take them to council," Oakley added.

Semko, who represents some 66 clerical and labor and trade union members, said that the city has not made a serious offer to the bargaining team.

"It's not that there isn't any progress," he added, "it just that there isn't a contract. We don't have a contract, and all our members are asking is that the city sit down with us and bargain with us in good faith."

Gala sales at Lakewood

Lakewood Shopping Center will be the site of a gala Sidewalk Sale on Thursday, Friday and Saturday (July 9-11). To find out what special deals are being offered by the Lakewood merchants, check the special supplement in this week's Belleville Enterprise, Romulus Roman and Wayne Eagle.

In addition to numerous bargains, the center will provide free balloons, gift certificates and live entertainment throughout the three-day affair.

The Lakewood Shopping Center is located at I-94 and Rawsonville Road in Belleville.

Here's police number again

Romulus residents needing emergency police assistance should call the Romulus Police Department at 942-0330, according to Police Chief, Don Flood.

For routine or non-emergency police assistance, residents can call the Police Department's Administration Number, 941-8400.

Chief Flood urged Romulus residents to write the two police numbers on the inside front cover of their local telephone directory "someplace where you can find them quickly in an emergency — when every second counts."

He said the new police numbers were put into service when the Wayne County Sheriff's Deputies stopped patrolling in Romulus.

Golden fete for Planks

It's rare, indeed, when a couple remain married for 50 years.

But Lawrence J. and Alice A. Plank accomplished that beautiful feat to celebrate their "Golden Anniversary" on June 23.

On hand were the Planks five children: Robert, James, Virginia, Diane and Illene. There are also 29 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren.

The Planks celebrated June 20 at the Romulus VFW Hall and some 200 persons showed up to wish them luck and congratulate them.

Also on hand was Romulus Mayor William Oakley who "remarried the couple again," and Ed Harris, who presented the couple a commemorative plaque for the occasion.

Romulus railroads

Cities grew by the sea and oceans sides and meandered inland during the late 1800's and early 1900's thanks to the steam engine. And the Romulus Library has put together a history of how the railroads were conducive to the growth of the township, the cities and that display is available during the month of July at the public library. Above, head librarian Diane Hazen looks at the window display of part of the artifacts that make up the historic and history of railroads.

Folmar recommends setting up a 'merit commission'

Angered because his department was overlooked by the mayor's recent request for salary raises, City Clerk Leonard Folmar said he would recommend that "pay hikes to taken out of the realm of politics."

"What we need in this city I feel is some sort of 'merit commission'," Folmar said yesterday. "A panel should be convened or some sort of committee to oversee and review the performances of key people in the city's administration. I can't and will not tolerate this politicking when it comes to a man or woman's performance," Folmar continued, "and that is what the mayor's budget and raise scale reflects."

In a written statement to Mary Ann Banks, Mayor Pro Tem, and to members of Council, Folmar said the city clerk's department has been overlooked when it comes to pay hikes.

"It is gratifying to say the least, to see my very distinguished colleagues are beginning to recognize the worth of their appointed personnel. I am, however, mystified by the apparent oversight as it applies to the appointed personnel in the office of the City Clerk."

"If equitability can be found in the recommendations prepared by the Mayor and let me hasten to point out that I do not object in any way to the recommendations put forward by the Mayor, as they relate to other departments, then there can be only a gross oversight as it relates to appointed personnel in the office of the City Clerk."

Folmar went on to say that: "The Deputy Clerk of the City of Romulus is a department head in every sense of the word, and, in addition, is mandated by law to work extended hours well beyond those required of other department heads. The Administrative Secretary to the Clerk is paid the average for that position.

"In reviewing the recommendations for all non-union personnel it is more than clear that there was an obvious oversight, and having called this to your attention I would like to see some adjustments."

Folmar then said a "merit commission" would help solve some of the problems of evaluating key personnel in the administration and "once and for all would take this mess from politics."

Mayor William Oakley countered with: "I had requested that Folmar serve on a committee to evaluate non-union personnel and recommend salary scales. And he refused."

"I didn't call it a merit commission," Mayor Oakley said, "however, it would have served the same purpose."

City Council adopts 'no frill' budget

Romulus City Council last week unanimously approved a $7 million budget which, according to city officials, contained "no frills or fat."

The budget cites $6,343,271 in general revenues and appropriations of $6,148,271. However, because the city is in the midst of contract negotiations with the Teamsters Union, approximately $190,000 has been put aside in a contingency fund.

"There certainly isn't any frills in this budget said Mayor William Oakley. "However, there are an awfully lot of necessities. There is no fat in this budget."

The city had until July 1 to pass and approve the budget for the 1981-82 fiscal year, as required by state's Uniform Budgeting Act.

Councilman Edward Rush pointed out "that last year we didn't manage to approve a budget until October and that was not until there were some threats by citizens to sue that we did adopt it before the July 1 deadline," said Rush. "however, I thought some of the repeated increases, asked for by the mayor for certain department heads were excessive and I voted against that portion of the budget."

Mayor Oakley had come back to Council and requested salary increases for the Community Grants Coordinator, the Director of the Department of Public Works and the Legislative Secretary-Administrative Receptionist.

One of the problems the mayor had in putting together the budget was "he didn't know what the bottom line was because of the problems with the computer printouts."

The city has had problems with its computers since they were installed more than two years ago.

"I don't know the bottom line from last year," Mayor Oakley reiterated, "and the problem is with the computer printouts. We may have to transfer or adjust our budget, and I'm guessing now, by a couple of hundred thousand dollars."

"We won't know that until we see what the bottom line is, that is balance the red lines with some of the black ones, and see what we have to adjust because the state law is specific, it now requires that you speak to your deficits."

Mayor Oakley stressed that he had budgeted $19,000 in a contingency fund for two reasons. "First, for budget adjustments for contingencies in last year's expenditures; the other for union contract negotiations."

The Mayor said that there is serious talk about dismantling the computer department in favor of a computer service.

Lawsuit against DSS

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

The City of Wayne has filed suit against the State Department of Social Services (DSS) and two applicants for licenses in hopes of halting the opening of two adult foster care facilities on Meadowlawn and Poplar streets in the community.

City Attorney Phil McKinney this week told the City Council that he has filed suit in Wayne County Circuit Court, requesting a temporary injunction against the two homes.

Plans had been to seek a temporary restraining order, however, McKinney told the council that because the DSS is closed mouth on it processes for such homes, the city would not have been prepared to defend their position with adequate information within seven to 10 days after such an order would be issued.

According to McKinney, there "really isn't a great deal of information on the process available" and that it would take a few months to go through "the discovery process to get any solid information."

The lawsuit has been assigned to Judge Roman S. Gribbs, whom McKinney believes has yet to hear a lawsuit pertaining to foster care homes, a possible plus for the city. The DSS and the applicants have 45 days in which to respond to the lawsuit before Gribbs would make a decision, and according to McKinney, no response has been filed as of yet.

Wife killer awaiting sentencing

For rape of 17-year-old girl

'It was the most hideous crime that I have ever investigated' Detective Lewis

The victim was tossed from a van and left for dead in a Sumpter Township field last January.

Smith's two accomplices were given 10 to 20 years in prison. The jury convicted Phillip Panik, 30, of Wayne and Joe Minkler, 26, of Romulus.

Wayne County detectives investigating the crime called it "one of the hideous crimes they have ever investigated in recent years."

Detective Norman Kohlstrand and Special Investigator John Lewis "never in their police careers had they seen anything like it."

The victim needed 50 stitches in her throat and "it was a miracle that she survived," police said.

Panik had been recently paroled after serving about seven years for the murder of his wife.

Stolen autos are a multi-billion dollar business

The driver's license, registration and past bill of sale looked official. But every one was counterfeit.

All an essential part of a multi-billion dollar business — auto theft. About $4 billion worth of motor vehicles will be stolen this year — one out of every 145 cars in America — warns the National Crime Prevention Coalition, composed of representatives from law enforcement, insurance, government and civic groups.

And even if your car is not one of those that is stolen, as a motorist you will pay part of the cost, through increased insurance premiums.

Even the best safeguards won't stop all auto thefts.

For this reason motorists should consider purchasing comprehensive physical damage insurance, which provides protection against financial loss if an insured car is stolen, or damaged as the result of vandalism, fire, glass breakage, malicious mischief, riot or civil commotion, the Coalition observes.

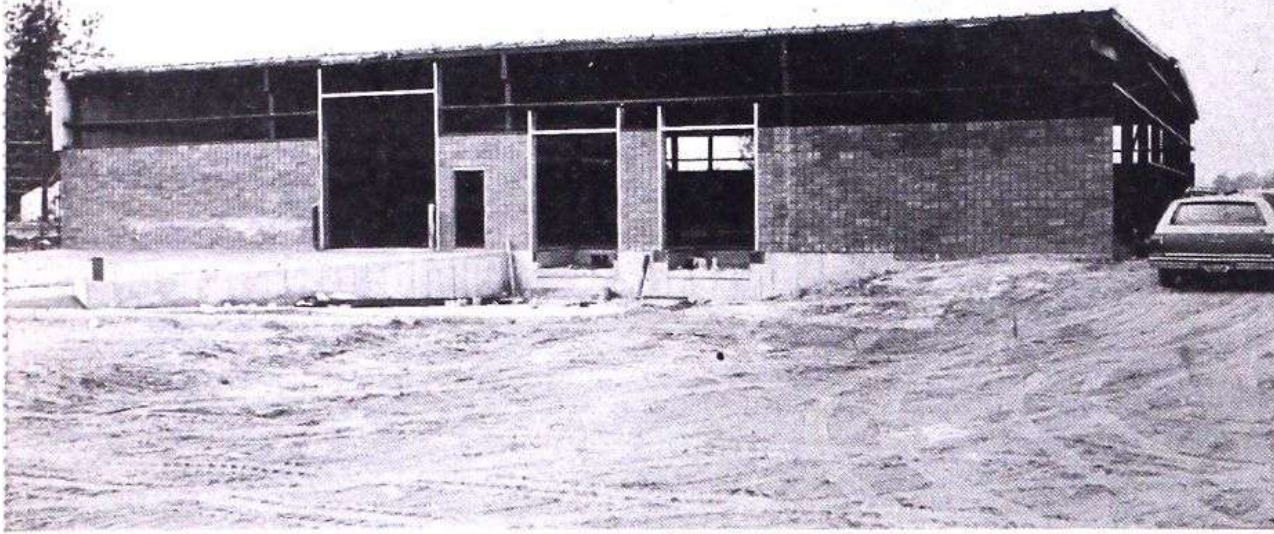

Purchase of this coverage is optional for motorists, and the cost varies by area depending on loss experience, such as the number and costs of car thefts.

Comprehensive physical damage insurance is sold on a deductible basis; the most common deductible is $100.

"Deductible basis" means that the policyholder pays for any amount of the damage up to the deductible amount and the insurance company pays the rest of the agreed-upon claims settlement. For example, if the policyholder has

$5,000 total coverage with a $100 deductible and the insured car suffers $600 damage resulting from vandalism, the policyholder pays the first $100 of damage and the insurance company pays the remaining $500.

The higher the deductible the lower the premium. Specific information on auto insurance policies and costs may be obtained from your local insurance agent, broker, or company representative.

Aimed at unscrupulous lenders

Rep. Keith's bill would regulate 'secondary mortgage' practices

Currently unregulated mortgage lenders offering secondary mortgages will be licensed by the State or otherwise face stiff fines and/or imprisonment, thanks to a bill sponsored by State Representative William R. Keith, D-Garden City.

Under House Bill 4011, mortgage lenders would be required to follow specific state regulations and guidelines to insure no more secondary mortgage schemes befall upon unsuspecting borrowers that have recently been uncovered by the Attorney General and reported by several major newspapers.

In those incidents cited by the Attorney General, unscrupulous lenders who up until now did not have to be licensed by the State of Michigan, used various means to deceive borrowers.

Among a few tactics used in incidents were: Encourage borrowers to incorporate so the lender could avoid the state usury limit which only applies to individuals and not corporations; Charge "finders fees" of up to $10,000.00 in some cases, while not making mention of the fact to the borrower; Deceiving the borrower by having him sign a waiver of his right to cancel his loan application for a period of up to three days; Offering so called "wrap-around" mortgages implying to the borrower that the first mortgage is being paid off, when in fact, the borrower remains obligated.

No Bill will ever stop deceitful practices...

"My bill will help to stop these deceitful practices. As a legislator with a working background in finance, I am appalled at these kinds of operations," Keith said. "The vast majority of regulated lenders may now make legitimate secondary mortgages, which can offer a borrower a practical mortgage option with his or her equity in the residence. "It is sad that a few fastback artists, who up until now have escaped the protections contained in the regulatory system, have caused a tarnished public image to this particular area of lending." "Passage of this legislation places rigid controls on disclosure and advertising in which a lender may engage and will be prohibited from encouraging a borrower to incorporate to escape legal interest rate limits. "If any lender fails to follow these requirements, he may lose his license and face a punitive fine and/or imprisonment," Keith said.

Keith cited that many other consumer protections were specifically included in the writing of H.B. 4011. The sponsor also praised the bill for offering the public a secure means of utilizing a potentially beneficial mortgage instrument. Especially noteworthy, is a mechanism where laid-off homeowners unable to make their house payments, could obtain a second mortgage disbursed in monthly amounts equal to his house payments and paid directly to the first mortgage holder until the worker is able to regain employment and resume his regular monthly payments.

"This would allow a laid-off worker who cannot, for the present, make his house payments, who has a reasonable likelihood of re-employment, to get a loan to make his regular house payments so as to not risk losing his home through default," Keith concluded.

Search begins for grid coach

Tiger boosters to hold meeting on July 13

While the search continues to find a replacement for head football coach Michael Colletta, athletic boosters at Belleville High must also find money to finance the 1981-82 Belleville High varsity athletic programs.

"We are looking for a replacement for Mr. Colletta," said James Richendollar, Belleville High principal. "We are looking first within the school system, then outside. The job has been posted."

Colletta caught a whole pack of his fans by surprise earlier in the year when he announced that he was quitting as head coach after only two years on the job.

In the meantime, the Tiger Booster Club has one of its biggest challenges in recent years before it. It has successfully petitioned the Van Buren Board of Education to let its members attempt to raise the necessary funds to keep the high school varsity program alive.

The varsity program was axed because of cutbacks. The board, faced with huge financial deficits approached the school district voters on two separate occasions for approval of 4-mill operational levies and both times the voters turned down the requests.

The board had no alternative, they said, but to make program cutbacks. One of the casualties was athletics.

The Tiger Booster Club, many of whom have boys and girls in athletic programs, has decided to raise the necessary money for the varsity teams.

The club plans to hold a meeting at 8 p.m., Monday, July 13, in the Belleville High School gymnasium and they are urging all interested residents to attend.

According to school officials, club members would have to raise approximately $50,000 to keep the programs alive. Club members are considering a controversial $100 per athlete charge per family, plus a variety of fund-raising events and gate receipts as means of solving their dilemma.

County must pay deputies overtime

Wayne County Commissioners, trying to keep their 1980-81 budget reasonably intact, lost another round late Tuesday when Circuit Court Judge Irwin H. Burdick ordered the commissioners to pay nearly $1 million in overtime payments to 350 Sheriff's deputies by July 17. The 350 deputies, not affected by January layoff notices, will receive an average of $3,000 each and county commissioners will face contempt proceedings if the judge's orders are not carried out by the July 17 deadline.

Chairman of the Board Samuel A. Turner said the commissioners did not plan to appeal. "As long as they (the deputies) are not among those who were laid off in January, then they should be paid," he added.

In the meantime, Sheriff William Lucas has continued to operate his divisions on 12-hour shifts at a cost of $100,000 per week to county taxpayers. Lucas told members of a Ways and Means Subcommittee recently that because of understaffing problems he is forced to continue the overtime despite their orders to stop. He asked for an additional 30 officers to open fourth floor cells at the jail annex in Westland and was refused. Instead, County Commissioner James Rashid suggested he could operate within the budget by placing deputies in their proper positions at the jail rather than continuing to use them to maintain the road patrol, which was written out of the current budget last November.

Youngsters from Romulus and Belleville are among a group of students participating in a two-week computer program, Computers and You, sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District. During this computer camp youngsters five through 14 years of age are learning some of the intricacies of computers as part of a district project for educationally talented and gifted students. Among the local participants are Daniel Curtis, Todd Barron and Matthew Larcinese of Romulus and Robbie Ferrett of Belleville.

Computers can be very fascinating. That's what a group of students are discovering at a two-week computer camp being conducted by the Wayne County Intermediate School District. Romulus youngsters Todd Barron, 11, (left) and Daniel Curtis, 13, work out a program on one of 19 mini-computers used under the watchful eyes of Dorothy Knopper (center), a consultant for gifted and talented education in the district. The program is being held at the district's extension offices in Wayne with some 35 local students in attendance.

PAUL PRZYSTUP

Local pupil to travel to Belgium

What's it like in the summer in Antwerp, Belgium?

A 14-year-old Belleville resident will soon know, thanks, in part, to "Youth for Understanding" and the Belleville-Van Buren Jaycees.

Paul Przystup, a ninth grade student at Belleville North Junior High, was presented a $100 gift by the Jaycees to help defray his costs to travel and visit Belgium this summer.

Paul, the son of Dennis and Lorene Przystup, 46816 Ayres in Belleville, will spend his summer days in Antwerp with the Horemans family. He is traveling with "Youth for Understanding", the world's largest high school student exchange program.

Paul's host, Mr. Horemans, is a chemist. The Horemans also have four children, three boys, and one girl. This summer, the Horemans, along with Paul will spend their vacation in France.

The Youth for Understanding program is open to students between the ages of 14 to 18. Paul is one of 14 students who were selected by YFU to participate in the summer exchange program.

The young student was presented the $100 by the local Jaycees "in recognition of his high scholastic achievement after maintaining an 'A' average."

Persons wishing information about the YFU program, or would like to host a foreign student, should call the Belleville area representative for YFU at 697-8231.

Agency seeks jobs for area youths

Many businesses and industries have been utilizing the ESP Job Placement Program — Encouraging Successful Placement of Youth — offered through the Romulus and Taylor Community Schools.

Employer's interviewing and training time has been reduced as applicants are prescreened through the program and only those with experience, aptitude, and interest are referred, according to school officials.

The "ESP Program" is funded by the Wayne County Employment and Training Administration through the Title IV Youth Entitlement Act.

The program provides the necessary tools for youth to successfully enter the world of work. The services of ESP include: Career & Vocational Counseling, Occupational Information, Employability Skills, Literacy Training and Full and Part-Time Placement.

Many youth 16-21 years old, with a variety of vocational backgrounds and job experiences, are eagerly searching for employment. These youth can suit every employment situation, day Wendy Lund and Fran Teasdale, ESP Job Developers who are in the process of contacting employers through personal visits, by telephone and mailings, to identify their specific employment needs and to assist them with the placement.

Trooper announces retirement

State Police D/Sgt. Kenneth R. Kraus, 46, of the Ypsilanti post, announced his retirement, following more than 25 years of service, Col. Gerald L. Hough, department director, has reported.

Kraus enlisted in the department in April, 1956, serving first at the Wakefield post before assignment in 1961 to Flint.

In 1967 Kraus was promoted to detective at the Ypsilanti post where his rank was reallocated to detective sergeant level in 1971.

His department credits include his part in a multi-agency cooperative police investigation of a series of bank robberies in the Detroit area beginning 1973. This police probe resulted in the arrest of nine subjects on 18 federal charges and search for three others said to be involved in seven robberies in which over $260,000 was taken.

He and his wife, Mary Joan, have a three daughters.

There is a lot of work involved in putting together a parade.

Especially when it comes to the Belleville-Van Buren Strawberry Festival Parade.

And there are a lot of thoughts now, after the whole thing is over when you say to yourself, 'It could have been better...' but I would like to say, 'It was great.'

It was great because our residents are great, and the people who got involved are great.

And let me say here and now, "Thank you." I enjoyed working as the parade coordinator and also to remind our residents that some of the remnants of the Strawberry Festival Parade are still on display at the local library.

The Papier Mache Mask contest that was held in conjunction with the Belleville Strawberry Festival Parade was also a great success.

A lot of hard work went into each mask. Some of the children made their masks as an art project in school and received grades on them.

All types of characters were represented such as "Speedy Gonzales" by Brenda McHargue, "Petunia the Pig" by Jay Allen and Sara Zweng and an animal from the Muppet Movie by Scott Hackney. These entries were in the junior high category.

Ninth grade winners were Katie O'Brien as a duck and Sally Wojtowicz as Miss Piggy. In the pre-school to fourth grade category were Sonya Chie as a Strawberry shortcake Dena Stanford as Raggedy Ann. Sandy Britton as Bugs Bunny, Kelly Jones as Porky Pig, Anthony Krzyzanowski as Tweety Bird and Robby Udovick as Mickey Mouse.

The two judges from Detroit Roger White, a professional make-up artist and Doctor Lynne Boyle, writer and producer of "Daedel Doors" TV program on Channel 7, had a tough time deciding who would receive the trophies and ribbons but everyone came out a winner with free coupons for ice cream from McDonalds and Baskin Robbins and carnival ride tickets furnished by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The children will now put their masks on display at the Fred C. Fisher Library for the month of July.

Everybody likes a champion

By LINDA ST. THOMAS

"Ali could have taken Marciano out in three." "Jim Brown was a better half-back than O.J. Simpson." "Sandy Koufax was the greatest pitcher of all time."

At one time or another, these statements could have caused heated arguments in most any arena, stadium or ballpark in the country—and they probably still do. As sportswriters know, you're skating on thin ice when you make definitive statements about who's the best anything in sports.

And, as we all know, there are sports fans aplenty with stronger feelings about pitchers or quarterbacks than about presidential candidates.

Debate over the "greatest" recently spilled into a museum—the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C., where staffers have selected 100 champions in American sports for a special new exhibition.

It was, unsurprisingly, quite a struggle for historian Marc Pachter and curators Kenneth Yellis and Beverly Cox to winnow the many worthy candidates down to a magic one hundred. Indeed, the project took nearly two years.

Their final roster of champions includes such all-time greats as Babe Ruth, Muhammad Ali, Jim Thorpe, Willie Shoemaker, Arnold Palmer and Billie Jean King. But if there's little disagreement here, in all likelihood there will be much more over others on the gallery's list.

"It didn't take us long to realize that there's no ultimate list of the 100 greatest sports heroes. It's all so subjective," Pachter says. "Once we accepted that simple fact, we felt liberated. Our choices probably will make some people angry because their favorite boxer or halfback or jockey was omitted. The problem isn't so much who we included but who we excluded from the exhibit."

So how did they pick these 100 men and women?

The athletes had to be outstanding in their chosen sport, of course, but they also had to be charismatic figures, Pachter explains.

"For this exhibit, we weren't so much interested in technical expertise. The pitcher's pitcher is not necessarily the one we wanted," he said. They were looking for a "champion"—one whose presence in the game would guarantee a crowd, who caught the eye of the editors and sportswriters of the day, who might have been the subject of a song or a film. In other words, he or she had a special relationship—good or bad—with the fans.

It's no coincidence that there is a disproportionate number of boxing heavyweights, baseball sluggers and football offensive players in this exhibit. These are the very positions that tend to attract such charismatic personalities.

While many athletes, such as Lou Gehrig, were universally adored by the crowds, others are sometimes remembered for the controversy they engendered: Ty Cobb, the first player elected to baseball's hall of fame, whose ruthlessness alienated him from his teammates and the fans; Ted Williams, the slugger who became as famous for his refusal even to acknowledge a crowd's standing ovation as for his six major league batting titles, and Muhammad Ali, whose conversion to the Black Muslim faith, claims to invincibility ("They all must fall! In the round I call!") and opposition to the draft during the Vietnam war antagonized some boxing fans of the early 1960s.

Many of these athletes in the exhibition of photographs, paintings and sculptures were known to average Americans, even those who didn't read the sports pages everyday. All of them were celebrities in their time and, in most cases, they were known to succeeding generations. Today, for example, most Americans recognize the name of John L. ("The Great John L.") Sullivan, although he was a boxing champ more than 85 years ago.

It must also be said of these 100 persons that they were all winners. "Although we may talk about competition being unhealthy, when you get right down to it, Americans love a winner," Pachter says. "However charismatic these athletes may be, they would not be champions if they had been losers. What sportswriter Heywood Broun said about Babe Ruth could apply to many of these athletes: 'The joy of watching Ruth lies in the fact that he is so palpably intent upon victory. There is never a moment when he is not trying...'"

For Pachter, Cox and Yellis, one of the agonies of working on this exhibition was leaving out so many champions. "We understood all too well how many great sports figures the nation has produced and regret how few we have the space to include in our sampling. Where, for example, is slugger Stan Musial or golfer Sam Snead or tennis pros Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors or football players Sam Huff and Tom Harmon?"

In the process of choosing the "greatest" athletes, managers or commissioners, Pachter, Yellis and Cox combed through histories of sports and collections of sportswriters' columns and read the sports pages of old newspapers. Yellis trotted off to a variety of halls of fame—boxing, baseball, basketball, tennis, auto racing, skating, rodeo and college football—to do his research.

"In the beginning, we divided the work among the three of us, each taking about six sports to study," Cox recalls. "We finally came up with a list of about 160 champions and then we had our big meeting. It went on for days, with each of us trying to sell the others on the athletes he or she thought should be included in the show."

One criterion for the finalists: the athlete's name had to be recognized by all three curators. But the most important considerations, of course, were the person's athletic ability, charisma and impact on the sport.

As specialists at the National Portrait Gallery, the exhibit's organizers also were concerned about representing those sports which have been deeply entwined in American culture from the mid-19th century through the present. So "Champions of American Sport," which is supported by grants from Philip Morris Inc. and the Miller Brewing Co., includes sports figures from the 1850s through the first world war, from the Golden Age of Sports (1920-1930) and from modern times (1930-present). It represents a total of 16 sports: baseball, football, boxing, yachting, biking, horse racing, polo, auto racing, golf, tennis, swimming, skating, track, rodeo, basketball and hockey.

Baseball, which alone has given Americans hundreds of nationally recognized personalities, presented a special crisis for the curators because it was so difficult to decide whom to omit. In the exhibit, baseball has the most space—17 champions: 14 players, a commissioner (Kenesaw Mountain Landis), an umpire (Bill Klem) and a manager (Casey Stengel). Other sports have come to the attention of most Americans only through the prowess of a famous character such as polo's Tommy Hitchcock or yacht skipper Bus Mosbacher, who has twice defended the America's Cup.

The biographical sketches of the 100 champions provide insight into the reasons they were chosen. These sketches, written by Pachter and other historians, appear in the catalog accompanying the show.

Of Babe Ruth: "Babe Ruth was the ultimate hero of a sport with more than its fair share of heroes—a giant of monumental swagger and breathtaking talent who set the standard by which all others would be judged."

Of Muhammad Ali: "...Ali was back on top, the first fighter in history to win the heavyweight title three times. It was a cause for celebration among all but the most diehard of his critics. Muhammad Ali was 'The' Champion, the most recognized and admired athlete on earth. Even his defeated opponent joined in the cheers. 'He was always my idol,' (boxer) Leon Spinks announced. 'He still is.'"

Of Vince Lombardi: "...I will demand a commitment to excellence and to victory, and that is what life is all about.' Thus spoke Vince Lombardi, who brought to football a religious fervor. More than any other single individual, coach Lombardi symbolized the 1960's obsession with professional football."

Of Lou Gehrig: "Lou Gehrig proved that nice guys do not always finish last. They can finish a glorious second."

Paired, and compared, with the greatest baseball player in history, Babe Ruth, Gehrig experienced the mixed fate of fame by association with a legendary figure. He and Ruth formed the heart of the Yankee's unbeatable 'Murderer's Row' of power hitters—back to back in the batting order from 1925 to 1934, Ruth third and Gehrig fourth."

Of Wilt Chamberlain: "Wilt Chamberlain—the 'Big Dipper'—made perhaps greater impact on basketball than any other player. During a 14 year career...Chamberlain scored a phenomenal 30,000-plus points and pulled down 24,000 rebounds. When it comes right down to it, scoring is what basketball is all about—and 'Wilt the Stilt' (a nickname he detests) was unparalleled at putting the ball through the hoop."

These are the 100 sports figures selected by National Portrait Gallery curators for the "Champions of American Sport" exhibition.

Disaster loans are available

Do you remember last summer's devastating storm that ripped through Van Buren, Romulus, and most of southeastern Wayne County?

And you do remember the hassle most city and township officials got when they asked for federal assistance to clean up the mess?

Well, if it should — and most are praying that it will never again — happen that a storm paralyzes this community or Michigan again, help will be immediately forthcoming from Washington, according to a bill adopted in the U.S. Senate last week.

Homeowners whose house is destroyed or damaged by a natural disaster could still get low-interest federal loans to restore their property under a proposal by U.S. Senator Carl Levin (D-Michigan) adopted by the Senate.

Senator Levin, whose amendment to the budget reconciliation bill was approved by a vote of 67-31, said it would establish an interest rate today of about 8 percent for Homeowner Disaster Loans granted by the Small Business Administration.

The Reagan administration sought to raise the rate on the loans from 3 percent in existing law to about 13 percent.

"Homeowner disaster victims who have inadequate insurance and can't get credit elsewhere are among the neediest in our population," Senator Levin told the Senate. "Almost 700,000 homeowners have relied on the SBA Disaster Loan program to help them get back on their feet when their homes have been damaged or destroyed."

"While we all would be pleased if this program were never used, that is beyond our control. Disasters show no preference for special interest groups, income levels, or regions of the country. There is little choice for homeowners who have suffered through a hurricane or flood or fire. They have to rebuild and we should make it as feasible for them to do so. We must have a program of assistance and it must be a good one and fair one."

Senator Levin, a member of the Small Business Committee, said his amendment would have no effect on the overall budgetary savings achieved by the committee for the next fiscal year. Its cost is estimated at $10 million in the following year and $27 million the year after and will be offset by savings elsewhere.

SHERIFF LUCAS

60 witnesses expected to be called

Sherrif Lucas' trial gets underway

As the long-awaited trial between Sheriff William Lucas and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners lurched through its third day of examination of witnesses, visiting Hillsdale Circuit Court Judge Harvey Moes' patience began wearing thin.

When Lucas' attorney, Dennis Nystrom, continued to repeat questions directed at commissioners called to the stand, Judge Moes ordered him to change his direction or face a $100 fine. At one time the trial was called for 15 minutes when Nystrom's harassment of Commissioner Delores Bennett caused her to break down in tears.

Lucas' role as Sheriff of the third largest county in the nation could be reduced to that of a jail keeper if the commissioners' position is upheld.

On the other hand, Lucas could have all of his funding restored to continue his road patrol programs.

County attorneys contend there is no statutory obligation for the Sheriff to provide road patrol services and that the county, facing a $19 million deficit, can no longer fund that division.

County commissioners were rounded up last week by court bailiffs on Moes' orders, but Moes made it clear earlier that he had no intentions of making this trial his career.

"I've got one little lonely room in this town and I don't plan on staying long," he told both sides.

When Nystrom observed that he — the judge — could bring the proceedings to a quick climax and unburden the minds of 250 deputies by granting a summary judgment against the commissioners, Moes snapped back, "It's the attorneys, not the courts, that have prolonged this situation."

Presiding Judge Moes was selected in May when Lucas' attorneys argued they could not get a fair trial in Wayne County courts when commissioners hired Joseph B. Sullivan, a former county circuit judge, to represent them.

The trial is expected to linger on for weeks as more than 60 witnesses are paraded before the bench.

Telephone users to pay for directory aid

New plan will go into effect on July 19

Michigan Bell has begun distributing consumer bill inserts to local telephone customers to remind them that a new plan to charge for heavy use of Directory Assistance service will go into effect Sunday, July 19.

Also starting on that day, Michigan

Bell customers will need to dial a new number — 1-555-1212 — for local and long distance Directory Assistance service anywhere within their own area code.

To reach Directory Assistance service for numbers outside their own area code, customers will dial "1," followed by the area code they are calling and then 555-1212.

Under the plan — approved last year by the Michigan Public Service Commission — customers will receive a monthly credit of 20 cents per line on their phone bills. There will be no charge for the first 20 Directory Assistance calls each month. Each call beyond 20 a month will cost 20 cents.

Only calls for numbers within a customer's own area code will be counted, and a customer may ask for up to three numbers at a time.

Michigan Bell expects only about six percent of its customers — the heaviest users of the service — will pay extra charges for Directory Assistance service in any given month, according to Gene Greek, local Michigan Bell community relations manager.

The six percent of customers facing higher charges under the new method now make almost half of all the calls to Directory Assistance service, Greek said.

Directory Assistance charges will not apply to calls made from coin telephones or from hotels, motels and hospitals.

Visually-impaired individuals and others with handicaps which make it difficult to use telephone directories will be exempt from the charging plan, Greek said.

Such individuals may call or visit their local Michigan Bell office to get an exemption form which the company will keep in file, he said. The exemption form does not have to be signed by a doctor.

He recommended that handicapped persons get an exemption form from Michigan Bell as soon as possible so they will not be charged unnecessarily for Directory Assistance calls when the new plan starts in July.

Under guidelines set up by the Public Service Commission, the new plan will be reviewed annually during a three-year trial period.

"The purpose of the plan is not to increase Michigan Bell profits, but to reduce and redistribute the costs of Directory Assistance service so that all customers save except the relatively few who make heavy use of the service," Greek said.

Roots of your plant problems

"What's wrong with my plant?"

This is one of the most commonly asked questions when the subject of houseplants arises. Some people go further with remarks like, "I just can't get it to grow right," or "I could make a plastic plant die."

The major reasons houseplants fail to flourish are:

- Too much or too little light;
- Too much or too little water;
- Too low or too high humidity;
- Poor potting soil;
- Too high or too low temperatures;
- Too much or too little plant food or
- Insects and disease.

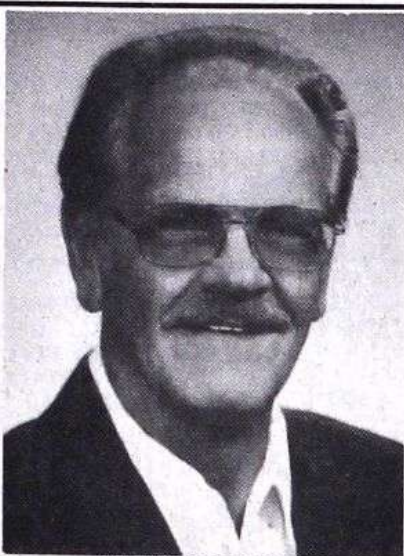

Often the same symptoms result from different causes, so plant troubles can be hard to diagnose.

Insufficient light over a long period of time results in spindly stems, yellow foliage and leaf drop. Eventually all growth will stop and the plant will die. Too much light causes leaf burn and general paling of foliage. The cure for both is to relocate the plant before damage becomes severe.

Too little water causes wilt. This seldom is serious unless you let a plant wilt frequently. The wilt recovery cycle is hard on a plant, so don't postpone watering until a plant shows signs of wilt. Drooping of the lower branches can be a sign that a plant is over watered. If possible, tap the plant out of its pot and look at the roots.

Root tips should be white. If they are brown, remove the soil and repot the plant in a loose, porous medium. Then water less often in the future.

Few plants suffer from too much humidity. Average homes have humidity readings of 30 percent or less; this is insufficient for most favorite tropical houseplants, therefore too little humidity is a common problem. The symptoms are browning of leaf tips and margins and, with flowering plants, bud drops and failure to bloom.

The biggest problems with potting soil come when the blends are too porous or too heavy. Prevent trouble by using a correct mixture in the first place.

Be sure too that the potting soil is sterile (it will say so on the package). Most houseplants tolerate average home temperatures of 60 to 75 degrees. If you keep your home much cooler or warmer than this you can expect stunted or wilted plants.

When feeding remember that many species go into a dormitory or reduced growth period during the winter months. Do not feed during this period. Always follow the directions of plant food manufacturers.

If you purchase your houseplants from a reliable grower you should never face problems with insects and disease. But if you occasionally take "snips" from a friend's plant or if you set plants outdoors for a summer vacation, you may sometimes face a problems of this kind.

Prevention is always best and one way to keep any pest from getting a start on your houseplants is to clean them often by wiping with a soft, damp cloth using lukewarm water.

Keeping room humidity at a high level during cold months is a further measure against pests and also helps assure healthy, attractive growth. In addition to hand misting your plants, you might want to run a cool-vapor humidifier in the coldest months. Both you and your plants will breathe easier.

Belleville residents celebrate on au Sable

Mr. and Mrs. Kaye D. Gardner of Belleville held an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration at their summer cottage on the Au Sable River between Mio and Luzerne.

They designated their sister-in-law, Gloria Gardner of Chaney Street, "camp director" and she coordinated a large potluck picnic, a special inner tube float down the Au Sable, dock dancing and bonfire activities with sparklers and flags added to the celebration of Independence Day.

Along with the fun on the river, at the cottage and around the bonfire, guests also were able to take in Luzerne's holiday celebration which included a parade in the morning, arts and crafts fair in the afternoon and fireworks at dusk.

Guests came from Montague, Freemont, Lansing, Charlotte, Allen Park, Luzerne, and also included the hostess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wally Wells of New Boston; her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wells and sons Jeff and Jason of Belleville; and also the host's parents, the Cade Gardners; his brother and wife, the Richard Gardners with Jessica and Robert, all of Belleville; and his uncle and aunt, the G. Edmund Gardners of Luzerne; and many friends.

SMOKING AND ORAL CANCER

You already know that smoking can be instrumental in the cause of bronchitis, lung cancer, emphysema and heart disease. But what does smoking have to do with oral health? It affects your whole mouth in many ways — none of which are beneficial.

By far, the most serious risk is the development of oral cancer. Smokers have a four times greater risk of oral cancer than nonsmokers.

Tobacco in any form can cause cancer of the mouth and throat. So don't think you can avoid cancer by switching from cigarettes to a pipe or cigars.

This year an estimated 24,000 people will be stricken by oral cancer. Within five years many of these people will be dead. Each year, approximately 8,000 people die from oral cancer. One of the reasons for this high death rate is that oral cancer victims do not recognize the need to see their dentist or physician until it becomes too late for treatment to be successful. Yet, ironically, mouth cancer is one of the few varieties that can be easily recognized by a visual diagnosis in its early stages.

Ms. Harris assigned to Keesler AFB

Air National Guard Airman Charlene A. Harris, daughter of Crystal L. Harris of Belleville, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the personnel field.

Pvt. 1 Keith W. Kitchens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Kitchens of 15628 Harriet, Romulus, recently completed a Vulcan crewman course under the One Station Unit Training (OSUT) Program at the U.S. Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Texas.

OSUT combines basic training and advanced individual training.

During their training, students learned all phases of the firing and tracking systems of this air defense system.

The Vulcan is a 20mm automatic six-barrel gun mounted on a self-propelled armored personnel carrier and is designed primarily for antiaircraft defense.

His wife, Deborah, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Strader of 90 East James, River Rouge.

Holly A. Rasmussen, 21, the daughter of Donald and Janette Rasmussen, 24323 Crowley, has entered the U.S. Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program (DEP). Holly currently resides at 75 Liberty, Belleville.

According to Technical Sergeant Roy Smith, the Air Force recruiter here, Ms. Rasmussen will commence four years active duty on Nov. 25, undergoing six weeks basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

The Air Force has guaranteed that Ms. Rasmussen, a 1977 graduate of Taylor Center High School, will then receive Medical Services Specialist training, and upon completion be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

Army Pvt. 1 Tony E. Jackson, son of JoAnne Jackson of 47430 Wear Road, Belleville, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualified the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

YFU seeks homes for students

Youth For Understanding, the international student exchange program that began in Ann Arbor and now is based in Washington, D.C., is seeking host homes for students who will be arriving in late July and early August to begin 1981-82 high school studies in this country.

International students participate in six month or full year programs while learning first-hand what American family life is all about.

Volunteer host families provide room and board to their student, offering the same guidance and live they give their own children.

Clothing, spending money, insurance, and other personal expenses are provided by the student's natural family and program fees. While the student attends school, host families are eligible for a $50 monthly tax deduction.

International students are required to have conversational ability in English and are expected to participate as a family member, not as a guest.

Approximately 4,600 exchange students are expected this year from Europe, Latin America, Australia, and the Far East, while close to 2,400 students from this country will live overseas with families in 23 countries.

Curtis Meeder of Westland is the area representative for Youth For Understanding in the Westland and Wayne area. Three students were placed with families in Westland and Wayne last year.

YFU is again seeking to place exchange students locally, including a 16 year old boy from Denmark with a strong interest in tennis. The exchange students will be arriving late in July and early in August, so families interested in learning more about the opportunity to host a foreign exchange student are encouraged to contact Meeder in the evening or weekends at 425-1591 in Westland.

GI Bill popular with vets

Vietnam Era veterans continue to use their GI Bill for educational purposes in Michigan, even though the average age of these veterans is now nearing 35 years old.

Gordon Clowney, director of the Veterans Administration regional office in Detroit, said that during fiscal year 1980 33,960 Michigan veterans were using their benefits.

Of this number 27,521 were in college. There were 3,235 taking other type of school training; 2,252 were taking on-the-job training and 952 were taking correspondence courses.

Of Michigan's 370,000 Vietnam Era veterans, of whom about 111,000 saw duty in Vietnam, 272,858 have used their GI Bill benefits. In addition to those in training last year, there were 965 Michigan service personnel taking training while on active duty.

Veterans have 10 years from date of discharge to complete training and receive benefits from the government.

Ceremony uniting Traskos, Shanks followed by cruise through Caribbean

A week-long Caribbean cruise, which took them to Samana, San Juan and St. Thomas, followed the recent ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic Church which joined Diane M. Shanks and Brad Traskos in holy matrimony. On their return, the newlyweds took up residence at 52 Spencer St., Belleville.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Shanks of 44820 Bemis Rd., Belleville, the bride was escorted to her waiting bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Traskos of 16416 Sumpter Rd., Belleville, by her father.

The Rev. Ray Bucon presided at the four o'clock rite on May 30 before some 250 assembled guests. Music for the occasion was played and sung by Dennis Di Palo.

For her wedding day, Diane selected a gown of white organza designed with a deep square neckline, full sheer sleeves and fitted bodice frosted with lace and beading. Her full apron-style pleated skirt swept into a cathedral train as she walked.

The same lace which outlined the skirt and train was used to band her 4-tiered veil of silk illusion which drifted to elbow length. Completing her ensemble was a cascade bouquet of white baby roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Paula Dolph of Chicago, formerly of Belleville, was asked to be maid of honor. Her full-length gown of lilac qiana featured a chiffon jacket with cape sleeves and a pleated skirt. She wore silk lilac daisies in her hair and held a cascade of lilac and white daisies and carnations.

Mrs. Linda Schlund of Belleville, the bridegroom's sister; Lori Minton and Terri Koski, cousin of the bride, both of Belleville, and Mrs. Kathy Neiderhise of Ann Arbor, another cousin, formed the bridal coterie.

The bridegroom's nieces, 11-year-old Dena Schlund and her 9-year-old sister, Angela, served as flower girls in lilac frocks accented with floral appliques.

Their 10-year-old brother, Mark, carried out the role of ringbearer.

The bridegroom chose his close friend, Mike Remus of Belleville, to be best man. Groomsmen included Phillip Shanks, the bride's brother, and Jimmy Harris and Tom Budd, all of Belleville; and Darrol Bauman of Romulus.

At the reception which followed at the K of C Hall in Wayne, Mrs. Shanks greeted some 400 guests in a lilac gown cut with a handkerchief hemline — the bodice in floral chiffon and the skirt in qiana. Mrs. Traskos chose for her son's wedding a long, 2-piece qiana gown in pale mint green. Both were honored with corsages of white baby roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Both Brad and Diane are graduates of Belleville High School, receiving their respective diplomas in 1971 and 1972. With a bachelor of arts degree earned from Western Michigan University in 1976, the new Mrs. Traskos is now working in electronic engine control at the Ford Motor Company in Dearborn.

Her husband, Fire Chief of Van Buren Township Fire Department, Station 1, is proprietor of Brad's Service in Belleville and is also employed at General Motors Truck and Coach Warehouse at Willow Run.

The rehearsal party, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Traskos, was held at Little Caesar's Pizza in Belleville.

St. Clement's in Inkster is setting for Garrison-McCollum wedding rite

St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Inkster was reserved June 6 for the double ring ceremony at which Janna Kay McCollum and Satchel Garrison spoke their wedding vows.

The Rev. P.Q. Golden officiated the eleven o'clock rite joining in marriage the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William McCollum of Harmony Lane, Belleville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Garrison III of Montgomery, Ala.

Soloists for the late spring rite were Jeanette McGruder and Mrs. Luther Hollis Jr.

The bride, who was escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a gown of silken white organza swirled with Alencon lace and designed with tulle sleeves and a reembroidered tulle skirt with the dropped waistline descending into a cathedral-length train. She wore a matching veil of silk illusion and carried a wreath of white sweetheart roses.

Each person in the bridal coterie lit a candle as they took their places at the altar.

As honor attendants, the bride's two sisters, Denise McCollum Ellis of Brooklyn Center, Minn. and Lorna McCollum of Belleville, donned majestic ivory qiana jacket gowns. Bridesmaids in identical rose-colored frocks included Mrs. Helen Bacon of Detroit; Kimberly Clark of Ypsilanti; Cherry Pugh of Detroit; Gayle Solomon of Westland; Ladonna Tolbert of Detroit and Sheila Williams of Cleveland, Ohio.

Melanie Mansfield of River Rouge filled the role of junior bridesmaid at her cousin's wedding and wore a modified version of the senior attendants' gowns. Raynitra Pugh of Inkster was flower girl in a long frock of ivory linen eyelet over rose qiana.

Darryl Buccannon of E. Lansing carried out the duties of best man. Others on the esquire side were Courtney Garrison of Montgomery, Ala., brother of the bridegroom; Willie Campbell of Detroit; Thomas Dunkin of Southfield; Larry Robinson; Haywood Wadsworth of Flint, cousin of the bride; Keith Way of Detroit and Thomas Yarrell of E. Lansing.

Junior ushers were Cesar Garrison of Montgomery, Ala., brother of the bridegroom; Torrance Hymes of Detroit and Phillip Wadsworth of Flint, cousin of the bride. Billy Norwood of Ecorse served as ringbearer.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McCollum donned a classic long Halston dressmaker suit in ivory silk linen and a coordinated hat. The bridegroom's mother appeared in a rose linen dress and hat. Both mothers were presented with cabbage rose corsages.

At the Roostertail, where the dinner-dance reception was held, hostess duties were assumed by Sheryl Billingsly, Nancy Hill, Mrs. Yolanda Matthews, Cheryl Rivers and Debra Taylor. Senior hostesses were Mrs. Doretha Armstrong, Mrs. Elva Gamble, Mrs. Ollie Hill, Mrs. Essie Shelton, Mrs. Aldrene Solomon and Mrs. Betty Terry. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hymes, coordinators for the wedding, the ladies all wore rose and ivory dresses with matching corsages.

Grandparents attending the festivities were Mrs. Virginia Covington of Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie McCollum of Jasper, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Barber of Ecorse and Mrs. Eliza Garrison of Montgomery, Ala. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bride's grandparents at the McCollum home on Harmony Lane.

The newlyweds honeymooned in the Bahamas and on their return took up residence in Southfield.

MR. AND MRS. SACHEL GARRISON

The new Mrs. Garrison, a 1978 graduate of Michigan State University where she affiliated with Delta Sigma Theta sorority, is now employed as a math teacher by the Detroit Public Schools.

Her husband is also a 1978 MSU alumnus and member of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity. He is currently working as a senior design engineer for Rockwell International in Troy.

potpourri

By Lee Smith -- Suburban Living Editor

Experts tell us that the American woman is the best cook in the world (and who are we Yankees to disagree?) The fact that we can put together a feast with a European, Slavic, Oriental, Polynesian, Far East, Afro (you name it!) flavor with as little effort as our own national cuisine makes us almost the eighth wonders of the world.

Not only are we adept at ethnic wizardry but we can roast, boil, fry and broil in any of the regional dictates of our own country — from New England style and Manhattan to Southern and Creole to mid-American and Soul to Western and ranch-style — we gals do it!

And not only are we versed at adding those dollars of sour cream to make it "Russian style" and those hot chilis to give it south of the border power but we can throw together a spur-of-the-moment meal that would make our foreign sisters' heads spin!

It happened just the other day when members of the Smith clan had just a few hours notice that "company was comin'."

Arriving home after golfing that day (about 4-ish), I found a message, "Family get-together at 7 p.m. at Uncle Bob's. Uncle Don and Aunt Pat are here. Bring anything you want for potluck."

"TONIGHT?!" I shrieked to Carol who'd taken the call informing us the South Carolina branch of the family had arrived in town for an over-night stay. "What have I got that I can make?" I asked.

"You don't have ANYTHING you can make," she replied through clenched teeth, "there's NOTHING in this house!"

Having been away for a 4-day weekend, she was right. We'd taken off leaving the cupboard bare and "fridge merely producing ice cubes and high kilowatt voltage.

What, what, what I mumbled to myself as I flipped through the old shoe box file looking for hurry-up casseroles or whatever, thinking that by SOME chance I "might" have the ingredients and save myself a trip to town. And alas — I ALMOST made it except for the unsalted crackers which my dessert decision called for.

Hurrying off to the local A&P (not by choice but because it's the closer of our two chains) I went directly to the Nabisco-Zesta aisle only to find (in typical A&P fashion) that they were "out."

So — with 10-item list in hand (a few things added for my armistice with Carol) I exited hurriedly while muttering about that stupid store. Already 10 minutes behind schedule, I was off to Kroger's — a lima bean casserole in mind — when the old comic strip light bulb went off and the eggs I'd boiled the night before visualized themselves in deviled egg form. That, along with the sweet I had in mind, would cancel out any baking process which that approaching 45-minute trip to Chelsea was slowly null-and-voiding.

Seven o'clock was already a late enough hour for our early-dining relatives and things were ready and waiting — a literal banquet — when we pulled in 20 minutes late. The Smith cheffies had outdone themselves!

Since that bunch is not too shabby in the culinary department, it was with a bit of trepidation that I offered a brand new, never tried (not even tasted) dessert — the recipe having been jotted down over the weekend at Lost Lake Woods. Redemption lay in the gal-in-the-know who'd raved about the no-bake goody and had allowed me to have the recipe. It didn't even have a name but it's going to be labeled for a lovely, gracious (and FUN) lady who shared the ingredients with "potpourri" — Myrilla Schrader from Northville.

Despite the fact there was an array of desserts which included strawberry shortcake, Herman cake, chocolate stripe rum pie, and coconut-banana-macadamia nut pie, my pan of no-bakes was a GREAT hit!

You're going to appreciate this one, ladies (and the gents who follow this weekly epistle) since there's no hot oven with which to contend. And if you've a microwave, you don't even have to heat a burner to melt the chips and other stuff. And I think it'd be safe to bet that they'd freeze as easily as they disappear.

MYRILLA'S MUNCHIE SQUARES

- 1 6-oz. package chocolate chips
- 2 sticks oleo
- 1 cup sugar (I used ¾ cup)
- 4 Tablespoons milk

Melt and add:
2 cups quick Mother's Oats
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts
Unsalted crackers

Line a 10x10 pan with foil. Cover with crackers, lining up evenly. Spread half of chocolate mixture over crackers, adding another layer of crackers and another layer of chocolate.

The recipe I copied did not say to cool, refrigerate or freeze, but I DID cool them in the fridge and they set-up quite nicely in a short time.

MORE ABOUT OUR FRIENDS, THE AVERAGE AMERICAN

Four out of five Americans claim they don't get enough exercise. Of every 100 such folks, 42 don't have the time and 16 don't have the willpower. Twelve plain don't feel like it, nine have a medical reason, eight lack the energy and 12 have some other excuse.

The average young man in America is 2½ inches taller than the typical old man in America and weighs a pound more. The average young woman is two inches taller than her older counterpart and weighs 14 pounds LESS.

Three American families in 10 start their meals with grace.

Forty-nine percent of American women wear the same size tops and bottoms. But 38 percent wear larger tops than bottoms and 13 percent need larger bottoms than tops.

The average American spends $40 a year in vending machines. There's a vending machine in the United States for every 53 people.

In the average public library, one book in 20 can be counted on to vanish from the shelves within six months of its purchase. Most are novels.

Ninety-seven letters in 100 mailed in this country are addressed with ZIP codes.

One in 14 American households has a fire in the average year. Appliances are the source of two-thirds of the blazes and kitchen stoves the cause of two-thirds of the appliance fires.

I never know what I'm going to find in my mail basket each week but this Thursday it was a clipping and note from the President of my Fan Club (how does THAT grab you, Steve?) For the many locals who were involved in the "Bomber Plant" during WW-II, this might be of interest:

There is a Liberator Club open to anybody interested in the B-24 bomber of that war. The old bird never received the press attention given the Flying Fortress, but most of those who flew the "lib" swore by her — and occasionally AT her.

Although the B-24 did not enter service until mid-1941 and was all but gone by 1946, it was produced in more copies than any other single American aircraft during the war. The Lib Club's address is Box 841, San Diego, Calif., 92112.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The glutton is kept alive by half of what he eats, and is killed by the other half.

Lake Point Pass this past week. On June 28 a family reunion was held at Van Buren Park. Mrs. Ruth Roulo of Liberty Street also attended.

The winners!

Neither 11 nor 15 are particularly outstanding gambling numbers but however you look at them, they were the winning digits for a winning combination — Dutch Atchinson of Belleville and Tom Hopka, of Knoxville, Tenn. formerly of this area. The twosome, who've teamed up for the Lost Lake Woods Club's Annual Invitational for the past 11 years finally took top honors in the 15th competitive meet June 26 and 27 at the Lincoln area private club. Hopka and his guest had a 140, 2-under best ball in the 2-day event which included 90 teams. For their win in the second flite they received the official club blazer and tournament crest. Others from this area playing in the tournament were Fritz Gerth and Lynne Hamilton, Bud Stapleton and Kurt Atchinson, Bob Gray and Sam Lo Presto, Clyde Batzer and Dick Wood and Conrad Schwartz and Bert Smith.

Need to return to frontier justice

A young girl and her family will soon move out of Wayne. And we can sympathize with her. We can understand her bitterness. Her sense of injustice and the hate she must have after her terrifying ordeal.

The girl was abducted, sexually assaulted and slashed with a knife across the throat, a gash that, according to police needed 50 stitches to close.

She was tossed in a lonely field in Sumpter Township in mid-winter and left to die.

She refused to die, and fought back. She managed to identify her assailants who eventually were arrested and recently convicted on two counts of criminal sexual conduct and one count of assault with intent to kill or murder.

The victim, all during this life-shattering ordeal, managed to remain strong and brave. Her family stood at her side, knowing the agony she was and is going with.

There were threats on her life because she refused to buckle. She is, indeed, a brave woman.

What we can't understand is our justice system. Here, one of the defendants, was a convicted wife slayer who served only a minimum prison sentence and was unfortunately back on the streets again.

We may not agree that all persons who unjustly take a life should be put to death, and there are some people who would advocate this, and there are some like L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County Prosecutor, who want the return of capital punishment, but is justice truly blind?

What right did these three men have to shatter the life of a 17 year old?

What right did these three men have to take this youth and destroy her hopes of happiness ... forever.

Sometimes we think frontier justice was best.

And maybe it is time to return to it.

She's a scholarship recipient

Deborah Burek, a Belleville resident, was recently awarded the Frank J. and Josephine Svoboda Scholarship from Madonna College in Livonia in the amount of $500.

The scholarship, established in 1962, is awarded to a student pursuing an art or journalism degree at the four year suburban college. The gift applies towards the Fall 1981 term.

Madonna is an independent liberal arts college for men and women. It offers associate and bachelor degrees in approximately 50 career-oriented fields of study.

The campus is located on Schoolcraft (I-96) and Levan in Livonia.

Governor, she's mad

Governor William Milliken
Your Majesty! Greetings and Salutations!
Your humble subject at your service. Feel free to take as many more of my Constitutional rights away from me as you wish.
My city of Westland, (or any other city in Michigan), under your rule still has too much power for Home Rule; please, take away these rights as well.
The Adult Foster Care Home concept, as administered by the Mental Health Department needs more residential homes; Please, give the city of Westland at least one on every block! We want so much to win the favor of our sovereign ruler.
Oh, also before I forget, if you need more money for the Department of Social Services or the Mental Health Department, please raise our taxes to 50%.
Whatever you want, by all means feel free to take. The fact that we live in America, the land of the free, where Democracy is the law of the land has no bearing in the State of Michigan.
Wait a minute!!! No Sir, Governor, you or any other person that takes your chair, is not going to do this to us. "I'm MAD AS HELL AND I'M NOT GOING TO TAKE IT ANY MORE".

It is true that I have just now become involved in the fight to find a more rational and sensible approach to caring for those less fortunate, but my zeal and fortitude are fresh and I will not be put off.
The return of Home Rule to the cities of Michigan is imperative. Somehow, some way, we the citizens will win this battle.
I'll not take up any more of My time with you, but please remember the name, Peggy Champagne (please spell it correctly)! You will be hearing from me again and again.
I ask only that you start to listen to your constituents, whether by mail or in person. You were elected to serve the citizens of Michigan.
Thank you for your consideration of this letter.

Peggy Champagne

Man for all seasons

Dearborn has its Michael Adray, who is called "Mr. Sponsor" for all his contributions to young and old athletic teams.
May I offer the name of Ray McCurdy of McCurdy Optometric who has done so much for local and area sports and athletic teams?
Mr. McCurdy, in a time when the economy is depressed, and when in items it isn't, is a man for all seasons when it comes to helping young and old athletes.
He began sponsoring our Westland men's softball team five years ago. I approached Mr. McCurdy to see if he would be willing to sponsor our team at that time and ended up supplying our team with complete uniforms. In the years to follow, Ray purchased uniforms, equipment and paid our entry fee into the Westland league. In addition, he entered us into several tournaments and managed to give the team and families a picnic or two plus bought pizza for the team and families on several occasions at a local pizzeria.

Ray McCurdy has decided to sell his business in Westland, ending his sponsorship of our team. As manager of the Softball Club, I would like to thank Dr. Ray McCurdy for all he has done, not only for the team but for all of the families and friends he has provided his services for.

Dr. Raymond J. McCurdy is a fine individual and businessman—Good Luck!

The 'family run' call

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

"When I get one of those calls I really don't know what to do, or expect," said the police officer. "I remember going to one of those calls - this lady was complaining about her husband beating her up."

"We got there and I pulled her old man off of her and suddenly I got a crack over my head - do you know what hit me? It was the guy's old lady. She was screaming 'Don't you dirty --- touch my husband.'"

And almost every police officer who has been in uniform for over a month can tell you similar stories.

The "family quarrel" run can be one of the deadliest. And this story is called to mind this week because of a release that crossed our desk from the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police - Recommendation for Citation.

The recommendation, by William L. Rechlin, Chief of Police, City of Westland, was for officer Tommy D. Vaughn who, according to Chief Rechlin, "...his quick action prevented further injury or death to his partner, Officer Terry."

Here is the police account that led this week to Officer Vaughn receiving the Medal of Valor award.

On Sunday, November 2, 1980, around 4 p.m., officers Tommy Vaughn and Michael Terry were assigned to a family trouble run in the 3000 block of Westhampton Street in the City of Westland.

They were met by the occupant's daughter who informed them that her mother was being held in the home by the father and that he might have a gun.

At this time both officers heard someone screaming, "No, no don't do it."

Officers Terry and Vaughn both heard this coming from the house. At this time the officers entered the house announcing "Police Officers". Once again, they heard the woman's screams from an upper story bedroom. The officers then proceeded to the second floor and located the bedroom and again heard the woman scream.

Again, announcing that they were the police, Officer Terry pushed open the bedroom door and was immediately shot and wounded, falling in the doorway. Officer Vaughn then observed the husband fire two shots at his wife lying on the bed, killing her.

Officer Vaughn, oblivious of his own safety, jumped into the doorway at which time the man fired one shot at Officer Vaughn, just missing his head.

Officer Vaughn fired seven shots at the assailant, all hitting him. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Although it is unfortunate that Officer Vaughn was unable to prevent the murder of the assailant's wife, we believe this quick action prevented further injury or death to his partner, Officer Terry.

As noted earlier - "family trouble runs" - can be deadly.

Challenge to Miss Westland Committee

'The pageant lacked class...'

This is an open letter to those who staged this year's Miss Westland Pageant. I challenge them to give us an answer.

As a person who lives in Westland, I can only say I am embarrassed to have witnessed this charade Thursday.

If this took a year to plan then perhaps three should be suggested. You take 24 girls who work to look their best, make a big deal of it, and then put on a pageant that looked like it was as set up as a dog show.

No music, a crowded stage with a runway so small the girls could hardly turn around. No decorations such as flowers, which would have done much to liven up the dull room. Crepe paper just does not make it!!

The lights could have been lowered with a spotlight and the public should not be invited. There is a glass enclosure above for them—there was so much noise and so many seedy people milling around, no one could hear was said.

The director should go to Livonia where the pageant is done with class, and the people are dressed up to make the girls running feel more important.

No, I am not a parent—but I want to make a challenge to the committee and I expect an answer.

If I was a parent, it would be too easy for you to get out of this challenge.

Last year's Miss Westland wore jeans in the parade, slacks in the photograph in the paper and had as much personality and ????

As I left the pageant, I heard many remarks from the crowd and from the girls that this and other pageants have been rigged. I sincerely hope this is not true.

I believe all the girls deserve an answer but I do not expect the truth from you! If they leave feeling the contest was rigged, then where is the incentive? The girls who take time and money to prepare for the contest and next year's girls should be aware if the winners are picked before the judging (as one girl said who seemed to know who was related to whom, etc.).

I especially remember two beautiful girls who would stop traffic. Poised, beautiful smiles, one in a dark pink dress with a lace over jacket, brown hair—the other long brown hair wearing a dress of light pink with lace sleeves.

They were fresh and gorgeous—neither one came in, at all. The crowd was amazed! You owe us all an answer as to what they were judged on or is it who you know?

I challenge the committee to have these girls be re-judged by people not at all connected with City Hall.

I'll bet my life you would have a girl who does have a chance of going on to win Miss Michigan. This is my challenge and all parents of these girls should back me up. If these judges were going on looks, poise, and personality—they all had blinders on. Take me on, it is the principle of the whole thing here — not the money. Let's find impartial, non-related judges and you'll end up with three beautiful winners. (There were many who never made it.)

I hope our Mayor will check into this. I guess it still goes—it's not what you know—it's who you know.

Take on my challenge—and let's see who wins!

Problem with Foster Care

EDITOR — I know this letter may be considered a fabrication by a few of your readers and too controversial to print by your newspaper, however, a trip to the Inkster Police Department will bear out the following information.

First, this is not a condemnation of the Foster Adult Care Program, because I believe these people, are people, and do have rights just like anyone else.

Secondly, I understand the state — the nation's — dilemma when there isn't enough money to go around, so elected officials attempt to solve one problem by closing institutions where qualified help (which is costly) can be given these mentally retarded people, and create another problem by setting up foster care homes in neighborhoods where, in general they are not accepted by the residents and also cause a lot of havoc.

A case in point: We live in Westland on the border of Inkster in clear view of a church. From our street on Henry Ruff we see across the street where a foster home has been established. The other day a bunch of the residents watched as a male and female from the adult foster care home in that area had sex right on the lawn of a church.

My 16-year-old son, his 15-year-old friend, and some small children witnessed this. We witnessed it. And many others also did.

When a group of our parents went over to confront those who are apparently "supervisors", people who were in charge, they thought it was a big joke.

Would you believe that all these people who are hired to help these mentally handicapped people just "laughed and said it was nothing." If you don't believe me, please look at the police report. I have a copy of this. What do we do now?

Also, I want to thank the Inkster Police Department for the understanding they showed us. I know their hands are tied, but if the state is going to continue to shove these kinds of homes into our midst, something must be done to "protect our rights as well."

I often wonder what would happen if any of my children or children of any of our city officials were attacked sexually by one of these impaired persons.

Is it no wonder that we don't want these homes in our neighborhoods?

Librarians like Senator Faust

EDITOR — The Canton Library Board, staff and I consider ourselves fortunate to have Senator William Faust as our representative in the State Legislature.

Senator Faust has long been regarded as a friend to the Michigan Library community and has consistently worked to insure better funding and more equitable treatment for Michigan's libraries.

Recently, Katherine Baldrice, Library Board treasurer, and I were privileged to attend the Legislative Day ceremonies in Lansing and were in attendance when Senator Faust unveiled his proposals to strengthen the state's libraries.

The Canton Library has become one of the most popular libraries in Wayne County exceeded only by the Detroit Library and the libraries in Dearborn and Grosse Pointe.

During the time we spend building book collections, we rely heavily on assistance in inter-library loan that we can obtain from the state library, and State Senator Faust's plan is assuring that this help will not be interrupted.

Romulus city officials pleasant

EDITOR — For the past 25 years I've found it necessary to contact municipalities in the Westland-Wayne area for pertinent data for my real estate practice.

It seems that always in calling the various departments of the City of Romulus I have been pleasantly surprised by their cheerfulness and cooperation.

I've thought about it and appreciated it, but never did anything, so I thought I would send this bouquet of my thanks to those responsible.

Grandma should get her tombstone

EDITOR — I know that these things happen in our society, and I realize that there is little that we ordinary people can do about it, but it disturbs me when I read about our senior citizens being robbed as I did in Mr. Mooradian's column, "The Other Side of the Meridian" last week.

I hope they catch the culprits who took her money and I hope — and I know it won't happen — that the judge who tries the case throws away the key because robbing a helpless elderly woman is as low a thing a person can do.

And I agree with Mr. Mooradian that the money and TV set can be replaced and she is lucky she didn't wake up or the culprits may have killed her.

May I make a suggestion? If about 400 of your readers mailed in one dollar, maybe "Grandmother Canup" will have enough money for the tombstone she was saving for?

And here's my one dollar to launch the campaign.

South Vietnam didn't want to win

EDITOR — I have been reading with great interest the letters on Vietnam and the Viet Nam War which have appeared in your newspaper. I also fought in that war and would like to offer some of my thoughts.

I own many books on various phases of that war, but do not consider myself a historian on that subject. I also have studied World War II, Korea and, have often wondered why we were in Vietnam.

I do not consider myself an expert on Vietnam or a historian on wars. But, being personally involved in the latter war, I feel that some of my experiences and what I write here will bear me out.

We lost in Vietnam because the side we were fighting for didn't want to win the war. It's as simple as that. In Korea, people were ready to fight and die to stop Communists and Communism.

We spoiled the Vietnamese who lived off of us like parasites. But when the time came to fight, it was usually the G.I. doing the fighting for

Reflections

Special kind of 4th of July

The Fourth of July will be over by the time you read this.

Most writers write about the Fourth of July ahead of time so that their words come out in print just before the Fourth or on that day.

For some reason I have never been able to write about this special holiday before it happens.

I have no difficulty conjuring up the feel of Christmas in mid-July, or Thanksgiving immediately after Labor Day, but strangely I can never conjure up that special feeling for the Fourth of July until I am actually into it, even though the symbol is important to every fibre of my being.

This morning I awakened to the sound of popping firecrackers, and the blood stirred and memories assailed me. This was what I was waiting for.

When I was very young we spent a good deal of procrastinating time the night before the Fourth, assembling our 'lady-fingers,' for the next morning's fun. Because we were girls it wasn't deemed proper for us to have more lethal arsenal for that great day.

I learned early to be content with this, even though in my heart I yearned for a good, gusty firecracker that could raise a tin can ten feet into the air, and sometimes, even make it explode.

A couple of hours into the morning, after the last of the firecrackers, and the sizzling rockets, and the tin cans had flopped to the ground, we headed for Canyon Hill, to while away some hours, popping in and out of the rocky formations above the river, the more daring of us swinging out over that river on hanging branches, and the rest of us shivering in dread anticipation of a 'rattler's' rattle.

As the noonday sun rose high in the heavens, we turned towards home, not too worried, for we knew that if we missed the family, we would be able to find them in the park, laying out the potato salad and the crispy fried chicken.

The whole town was there, and families grouped together and laughed and joked and yelled at kids, while biting into a special chicken leg.

The potato salad I loved, but the chicken I wouldn't touch. Never had I touched a piece of fried chicken since the day, a long time ago, when I watched my father lay a squawking chicken's head upon a tree stump and with one mighty whack, caused its head to fall to the bottom of the stump, while its body went into convulsive spasms, propelling it all about the yard.

My mother worried a lot about my refusing to eat the chicken which was designed by God to give me strong bones and a healthy heart, but she didn't say too much, probably because somewhere down deep inside of her, my refusal was touching a responsive chord.

There was a band that came marching into the park and placed itself before the red-white-and blue bunting covered platform and caused the air to vibrate with marches that were aimed to stir the most lazy patriotic heart.

About the time that everyone was full of chicken with hearts full of patriotism, came the speech-making. A long time after I discovered that they were called orators, but not in my park. They were speech-makers, and when we saw the men in their hot, heavy suits making their way towards the platform, my grandmother would gather us together, and hush us real good, and hurry us toward the folding chairs hastily arranged for the audience.

My father looked with great disdain upon those folding chairs and he would throw himself on the grass. Because, in deference to my grandmother, who believed that tobacco was Satan's own crop, he refrained from lighting his pipe, and chewed on long pieces of grass, instead. I usually fell asleep during the speechifying, and after it was all over, awakened refreshed and eager for whatever was going to come next.

I wasn't disappointed, for what came next was the gathering up of the picnic things and the general bustling of getting ready to go home, but we were, usually, able to sneak in a few games of tag, or hide-and-go-seek, and one time my little sister hid so well that the whole park had to turn out to find her, so that we could all go home.

Sometimes after we had arrived home, my father and mother would let us sit out under the stars and tell ghost stories, and those were special times, for we could hear the creak of the porch swing as mother and father swung lazily back and forth, and we could see the glow of my father's pipe as he contentedly sucked at it.

Sometimes when we would shriek in delight at a particularly gruesome ghost story, there would come a 'ssssshhh' from the porch and we would subside into excruciating shivers.

Those kind of days are gone forever, and maybe, just maybe, that is why I can never seem to write about the Fourth of July, until I am into it.

From the country to the city

At least three couples we know have, in the past few weeks, come back from vacations in the hinterlands ready to pull up stakes and move there.

These couples are all city people who've never lived in the country. That's why they want to live there now.

It's a fact that, sooner or later, all city people want to be country people. It used to be the other way around — that's how we got cities.

A long time ago, during the industrial revolution, country people came in droves and settled in the sleepy little villages surrounding the newly built factories.

Soon the villages woke up and found themselves with more people than they knew what to do with. They decided, right quick, that they had better become cities if they knew what was good for them.

Unfortunately, they didn't know exactly how cities were supposed to behave, not ever having been one before.

Your Pension

Law protects pension rights

(This is one of a series of articles from the U.S. Department of Labor giving information on how to qualify for a pension on retirement from private sector employment.)

The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA)—sometimes called the pension reform law—protects the pension rights of millions of workers who are covered by private pension plans.

Since certain provisions of ERISA became effective for certain plans after Dec. 31, 1975, workers no longer need to meet unreasonable requirements in order to obtain a right to a pension, and some benefits are usually provided after a worker has satisfied the age and service of his or her pension plan.

When you are first covered by your employer's pension plan, you start earning credits toward your pension for each year of continuous service. After a prescribed number of years, a percentage of your benefits become vested. When your benefits are vested, it means that you have a nonforfeitable right to receive them at retirement.

If your employer maintains a pension plan, it must contain one of three methods for vesting your rights to pension benefits: (1) cliff vesting—benefits 100 percent vested after 10 years of service; (2) graded vesting—benefits 25 percent vested after five years of service, and 10 percent for each of the next five years; (3) rule of 45—benefits 50 percent vested when your years of service and age add up to 45, with 10 percent for each of the next five years.

Under any of these vesting schedules, you would be 100 percent vested after 15 years of service. However, your employer may provide any other vesting schedule provided that it allows for vesting at least as fast as one of the methods described above.

Depending on your age, it would be possible for you to leave one employer, having fully vested benefits, and begin working for another employer under a new pension plan. You would not, of course, be able to collect these benefits until you reach the retirement age(s) specified in the plans.

For a copy of the checklist "Know Your Pension Plan," write to: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81003.

Jan &amp; Dean: Still riding the wild surf

The saga of Jan & Dean is one of triumph, disaster, and most of all, courage.

In the spring of 1958, things started happening for Jan Berry and his pal, Dean Torrence; "Jennie Lee," a song recorded by the two in Jan's garage unexpectedly became a smash hit, topping at #3 in the national charts. They were on their way, shooting the curl to stardom with no end in sight. The hits came one after another: "Linda," "Surf City" (their first #1), "Drag City," and of course, who can ever forget "The Little Old Lady From Pasadena"? Then it happened.

"Many years ago," Jan Berry stated some time ago, "I wrote and recorded a song that was to become the story of my life." Then he sang "Dead Man's Curve."

It was in April of 1966 that Jan drove his Corvette into the back of a parked truck at approximately 80 miles per hour. His head cracked wide open, Berry was lucky to be alive. It was the left side of the brain, which controls the functions of the right side of the body, that was injured. He had to learn to talk again from scratch, and he would never regain full mobility on his right side, so that when he walks, his right leg drags behind the rest of his body. As far as singing again, forget it!

But Jan was determined — after all, music was his life, and during his long years of therapy, all he lived for. Against all odds, he's done it, and Jan & Dean have been touring again for about two years now, and as anyone who caught the show at Center Stage in Canton last week will attest to, Surf City is still a great place to be.

After an utterly boring set by a band called Majesty, and an equally invigorating one by Jan & Dean's back-up group, it was finally time for the clown princes of surf rock to take the stage.

From the second they walked onstage, the near-sold out house was on its feet, dancing, jumping around, and living in the past through the sounds of Jan & Dean, who ran through all their hits as well as some Beach Boys' numbers (which J & D had helped Brian Wilson and the gang with in the studio to begin with) that the crowd ate up.

One thing bothered me though; since no comment was made as to Jan's injury (his singing is fine now, thanks), many in the crowd — in particular the two girls that were standing behind me — thought that he was extremely intoxicated, especially since he never stopped smiling (Jan had more fun than anyone!). If you girls read this, I just wanted you to know that not only did you see one of the all-time greatest surf-sound bands, but you also witnessed one of the most courageous men on earth, singing as if his life depended on it.

Dean Torrence, of the legendary surf-sound entertainers Jan & Dean, joins in a medley of the band's greatest hits last week at a concert in Canton. Photos by Steve O'Leary.

Jan Berry (left) and his pal, Dean Torrence, better known as the popular Jan & Dean, had a nearly sold out crowd on its feet last week at Center Stage.

'History' is mediocre spectacle

"History of the World — Part I" From Twentieth Century Fox. Written, produced and directed by Mel Brooks. Starring Mel Brooks, Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn and a cast of thousands. Rated "R."

Mel Brooks looks at world's history.

By STEVE K. WALZ
Special to Playtime

While most of Woody Allen's brand of comedy can be described as subtle, Mel Brooks' approach constantly goes for the jugular.

In fact, Mel's humor comes at you with such vengeance, that sometimes his madcap adventures become mediocre spectacles. Such is the case with Mel's "History of the World — Part I."

Right from the start

you get the feeling that Brooks is attempting to duplicate his outrageous "Blazing Saddles" flick with gutter language and bathroom jokes flying at you from all directions. More often than not, these Brooks-isms are more offensive than funny.

But "History's" one saving grace is its spectacle. Mel loves to spoof the old big screen epics, spending huge chunks of money on sets

LEISURE

Ready to purchase a horse? Be sure you are prepared

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Playtime Coordinator

For as long as she can remember, Carol Morgan always wanted to own a horse. She can still recall putting her feet in stirrups made of sheets while watching television cowboys and Indians cavort across the screen.

Finally she got her wish, buying a horse after graduating from high school. And they lived happily ever after? Hardly.

"My first horse was old and lame," Morgan reminisced. "I found out that I didn't know anything about horses—not how to saddle them, ride them or care for them. I learned through my mistakes."

"The second horse was only three months old," she added. "Since you can't ride a horse until it's older than that, I kept it at a boarding stable until it was old enough to ride. By that time I had taken instruction and was ready."

Today, after some 18 years of riding and instructing experience, Morgan hasn't forgotten those early misadventures. Recently she conducted a seminar at Dearborn's Henry Ford Community College aimed at teaching horse lovers the best way to approach this special interest.

And buying a horse is certainly not the first step in the process, the Belleville resident firmly maintained.

"At the seminar I tried to stress that you should find out if your interest is legitimate before buying a horse," explained Morgan. "Of course, you'll always find the person who went out and bought a horse, put it in the yard and then said 'What do we do now?'"

"But I can understand how that happens since I wasn't prepared either. We see the glamor of the cowboy on the horse but what you don't see on television is the responsibility involved in owning a horse."

Her recent visit to Henry Ford College substantiated that claim as several horse owners sought advice as to the proper methods of caring for their animals.

For those who haven't yet made that first purchase, Morgan offers the following tips:

1) Take riding lessons with an instructor rather than going out for the first time to a riding stable.

"With proper training you'll get better acquainted with horses and how to do things right," she declared. "A lot of people have had experiences at the stables because those horses are not in good shape. That's why you'll hear such things as 'The horse took off with me' or 'It wouldn't do anything.'"

2) Although there are only a few places offering lessons in the area, Morgan suggests potential horse buyers check out any of a number of sites, including: Nature's Last Stand in Plymouth, Batton-Morgan (a horse breed) Farms in South Lyon and Rushlow Arabians in New Boston.

"You'll find a better breed of horse at these places," she explained, "and a well-mannered horse is a real treat."

3) According to Morgan, a person who has finished the lessons can then either buy a horse or realize "it's not for me."

She recommends that one purchase an animal from a reputable instructor or horseman rather than at an auction. A pure bred horse with papers will cost from $1000 to $1500, she added.

Horses can be kept in the back yard if the property is sufficient or taken to a boarding stable, which will cost approximately $100 to $120 per month.

An apartment dweller in Belleville, Morgan keeps her horse at a nearby friend's residence. During the past five years she has concentrated on being a horse instructor and attending school, with minimal time for pleasure riding.

"A horse is not a pet," declared Morgan, who works as a scheduler in a refinery. "You can't compare it to a pet because you spend less time with a horse and it's too big to fondle. Don't think of a horse as a pet—it's too large an undertaking to be compared to a normal house pet."

"But you can still love a horse."

Friendly breakfast guest

Breakfast time at a northern Michigan cottage can bring an unexpected visitor or two. This friendly raccoon was very appreciative of his free meal, a nice piece of white bread, minus the jelly. The surprise guest wasn't too proud to accept a handout since it sure beat scrounging around the area looking for food. Our thankful friend declined any coffee with his meal, however. Obviously he's trying to cut down on his caffeine intake.

Mel's 'History' lacks funny ammunition

ish Inquisition and Revolutionary France.

To enhance his tragedy-comedy, Mel adds Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn and Harvey Korman — his resident "meshuga" repertory company. He also supplies us with a helpful serving of sex as he cavorts with voluptuous starlets like Mary-Margaret Humes and Pamela Stephenson.

There are some terrific throwaway lines in the film, but they are few and far between. Brooks' uncanny ability to poke fun at Jews and Christians alike can be a bit disturbing, but if you've seen Mel's previous motion pictures, then the put-downs shouldn't be anything earth shattering.

"History of the World — Part I" is by no means a family film. In fact, "History of the World — Part I" should serve as an example to all aspiring and perspiring filmmakers on how not to make a big budgeted comedy, unless you have enough ammunition in the script. Bathroom humor gets flushed away very quickly.

Nice try Mel, but no cigar this time.

Historical festival returns to Monroe

"Old French Town Days" will return to Monroe on July 25 and 26 in one of the state's largest historical reenactment festivals.

British and American soldiers. Various historic crafts and live musical entertainment will also be featured.

The festival will take place on the campus of Monroe County Community College, located off M-50, two miles west of Monroe. Further information can be obtained by contacting Dennis Au at 243-7137.

Where are prep sports headed?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

(Wayne Memorial wrestling coach John Wood, who edits the Michigan Forum, a wrestling newsletter distributed statewide by The Michigan Wrestling Association, has witnessed a marked decline in the numbers and the quality of wrestling programs in our state. The problems, he feels, are not restricted to wrestling, but affect all athletic categories. Here are some of his thoughts on the subject).

An old friend of mine once told me, "High School athletics is part of American culture and thus will be around forever."

I believed that once, but now I'm not so sure.

Particularly when I witness crumbling programs all around us, struggling to keep teams suited up while school boards slash, cut and eliminate budgets.

This, of course, is not an indictment of any local board of education because there simply are no culprits to whom I can point an accusing finger.

The problems of inflation, declining school enrollment, high property taxes and changing trends in education are complicated school related problems which are beginning to seriously affect prep athletics as we know them today.

If we examine the current plight of the high school coach, for example, it becomes clear that he soon may be an extinct breed.

Coaching is not necessarily a young man's pleasure, but it is understandable why a person with, say, 20-25 years of coaching experience under his belt might opt for a release from the time commitment at some point.

Are there several young people always waiting in the wings to take over? Let's look again!

Many of the young coaches are either currently being laid off or anticipate being laid off soon.

They are not likely to continue coaching if they are not teaching, and if they see a lay off notice coming in the near future. They are probably going to forego coaching in favor of seeking training for more marketable skills either in or out of the teaching profession.

So where does that leave the state of coaching?

There are certainly a lot of generous, time-giving, concerned fathers around who might step in to help, but I doubt if they would want to continue long when after coming from their own jobs, they had to face long bus trips, daily and weekend practices, diagnosing and treating injuries, booster meetings, setting up the gym or field for a home meet, discipline problems, fund raising activities, equipment inventory, and the usual politics involved with any and most athletics.

You can't have the games without teams and equipment. But I don't believe you can have the teams without coaches either.

In our own area, taking wrestling for an example, there are several coaches I know who may be on the verge of leaving.

Some replacements may be found for them, but I have known certain programs to fold completely when adequate coaches could not be hired.

It is not likely to see a program resurrected after it is terminated. In due time, if the trend continues, prep sports participation will be limited to a very few gifted athletes who can take positions on the one or two teams which survive, or the programs will be intra mural in nature, quite unlike we know them now.

I have some ideas on how to deal with such concerns, but I am most interested in hearing opinions from people in the communities.

Please direct your comments and suggestions to deal with prep sports to:

There is a young ball club that is training very hard during these hot, humid summer days in order to play the Detroit Tigers.

That is, if the pros ever decide to go back to work. Or is it play?

The name of the local team is the Westside Pioneer Beeper's, and they have taken that name for a good reason. An explanation is forthcoming.

In the meantime, the facts are that the Beeper's will take on the combined forces of the Civitans, Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary clubs in Wayne on July 11 at the Forest Field (east of Howe Rd., one block south of Michigan Avenue.) They'll meet the Tigers on Aug. 23.

The reason why this team — the Beeper's — is so unique is that they are one of more than 100 teams nationwide of blind people who can participate in baseball thanks to the development of the beeperball and bases, an invention by the Telephone Pioneers of America.

The ball is a regulation softball with an electronic device implanted to emit a distinctive "beep" for the players to hear. The cone shaped bases are equipped with a tone to separate their signals from the ball.

All the players are blind except the pitcher and the catcher who are sighted.

"The admission is free," said Bill Ahrenberg, who is handling publicity. "And the club members cordially invite everyone in the community to observe the achievements of blind people."

Linda Hogarth, the team's manager and her coaching staff of Volunteer Bell Pioneers, have been working with the team every Monday at Jaycees Park in Wayne. The service club team co-captains include Linda Potter (Civitan), Ahrenberg (Kiwanis), Bill Necker (Lions) and John Baracy (Rotarians).

Twelve games into the Wayne Parks and Recreation's Class A men's softball season, and it's still anyone's ball game.

Johnson's Carbonic stands atop of the field thanks to a 9-3 record, but twice-rained out Pittman's Installation is only a half game behind and it appears as if the battle will be waged right down to the wire.

And while these two frontrunners are slugging it out, keep your eyes pinned on Greg's Emergency Room. It is breathing down the frontrunners' necks and sporting a 7-4 won-lost record. No one is counting Greg's out.

In the meantime, Johnson's played the role of league leader as it humbled the fourth-place Wayne Assembly 14-0 behind pitcher Larry Holt's six-hitter. Holt received ample hitting support from Jerry Holbrook who sliced a pair of doubles and a triple.

Johnson's Charlie Morris knocked in two runs on two hits, while Mark Lipinski collected a single and double and two RBIs.

Don Belcher, the loser, picked up two of his team's six hits. Both were singles.

Pittman's stayed close in the title race as they turned back Perkins Engines 19-10 behind a 25-hit assault. Greg Mason accounted for four hits and 4 RBIs on a couple of singles, a double and triple while mate Dave Gibson also checked in with four hits. The winners received three hits each from Pat Bledsoe, Don Megowan and Randy Pittman.

Winning pitcher Randy Pittman gave up 13 hits, two of them going to Rollee Clendinning who tripled, singled and counted two RBIs.

In other Class A action, Pittman's erupted for five runs in the first inning (Continued on Page B-5)

Rush is on for City Championship Golf berths

As expected, it didn't take long for the news to spread about the 1981 City Championship Golf Tournament. More than 25 golfers signed up during the first week of registration.

The mid-summer amateur men's golf classic will be held two days, July 25 and July 26 at Fellows' Creek Golf Course in Canton Township and more than 100 area golfers will be in the field competing for city titles of Wayne, Westland, Canton, Inkster and Garden City.

The tournament, in its 21st year, is co-sponsored by the recreation departments of the cities involved and The Associated Newspapers. Competition is open to all amateur male golfers who either reside or are employed in the five competing cities and townships.

Separate city championships are staged simultaneously with each competitor playing 18-holes the first day, then returning for the finals the following day.

The tournament format helps determine the make-up of the five-man team which will represent the city at the state Recreation and Parks championship which will be held later this year.

Only bona fide residents of a city may represent that city at the state level.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second, and third place finishers of each flight and an additional trophy will be awarded to the medalist for the entire tournament.

"In addition, the medalist (low scorer) of the Wayne championship flight will be presented with the Patrolman Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy.

Patrolman Anderson, the first Wayne police officer killed in the line of duty, was gunned down May 24, 1974 responding to a family dispute call.

In order to enter the city championship tournament, golfers must fill out the entry blank accompanying this article and, mail or drop it off at The Associated Newspapers, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, Michigan, 48184.

There is a $22 registration fee which covers green's and trophy costs. Please make your check payable to Bill Haw-

'Poor Devils' causin' havoc

Class B club jockeying for title showdown

The duel between Unistrut of Detroit and the Poor Devil Lounge will ultimately decide the Wayne Class B men's softball championship.

That's the way it appears this week as Unistrut, with an 8-1 over-all record, holds a slim half-game edge over the Poor Devils who are 7-1 on the year.

The Poor Devils were anything but that when they took on and repelled Roger Hurd's 11-4 to keep in the title race. Blanked the first two innings by losing pitcher Ted Rize, the Devils erupted for nine runs in the top of the fourth to win a 11-3 battle.

Tom Bufford checked in with three hits, while Don Yarock, Brian Harrison and Gary Asher each collected two for the winners.

Yarock gave up 11 hits, three of those went to Rize, while John Ballons and Bill Roth split four between them.

The Raiders struck for three runs in the fourth inning, picked up two more in the fifth and hung on to win a 5-3 decision over Century 21. Each team collected eight hits. Jeff Tollison had three of those for the losers, and Bob Williams, Orville Hartford laced two hits each.

Rod Thompson chalked up the win; Jim Vergona was charged with the loss.

The Poor Devils exploded for six runs in the second inning, added two more in the third and sixth to beat back the Second Street Market 11-3. Ron Yuber, Junior Elinburg and Steve Hodgkins paced a 14-hit attack with each getting two hits off of loser Jim Deck.

Jim Byrd bagged two hits for the losers, with winning pitcher Bob Williams accounting scattering six safeties.

In other Class B games, the U of D rallied to a 13-6 victory over Lucille's which blew a 4-2 first inning lead. U of D put five runs on the scoreboard in each of the third and fifth innings.

Bob Wiper and Bob Schlieve each had two hits for the winners with Wiper accounting for three RBIs. The winners used Jeff Hogan and Norm Beasley on the mound and the duo gave up six hits, two of them singles to Bud Tipton.

Rog Hurd's ball club tilted the scoreboard three times in the second and an equal number of times in the third to chalk up a 7-3 victory over Jack's. Winning pitcher Rize was tagged for nine hits, two of them by John Irwin who tripled and singled.

Losing pitcher Denny Colligan served up 11 hits, two of those run-scoring singles to Bill Rohn.

Over in Class C, undefeated Lauraine's stretched its winning streak to nine games as they edged The Wheel, 6-4, and disposed of the Civitans 9-3.

The Wheel drew blood first, scoring once in the second inning, but the Class C pacesetter came back with three runs in the third and made it a 6-1 ball game in the bottom of the fourth. The Wheel retaliated with a pair of runs in their sixth after scoring one run in the fifth.

Doug Harmon rapped two singles off of winning pitcher Jerry Young who received some relief aid from Rod Bramble. Bramble also came through at the plate where he tagged loser Bill Spurtin for three hits, including a run-scoring triple.

Dick Clark's double and single went for naught against winning pitcher Bernie Holton who gave up three more hits (12) than loser Andy DeSaeger. Bramble sparked the winners with a pair of run-scoring singles.

The Wheel came up with five runs in the fifth and four in the top of the seventh to rally past the Jaycees 11-5 as Bob Cebalski put one out of the park and had three RBIs for the winners. Tom Shick also doubled and homered and turned away with two runs batted in for the Wheel.

Bill Cook, the winning pitcher, gave up nine hits, three of those to Harry Misener. Jim Green had a single and triple for the losers.

In one of the most lopsided affairs of the campaign, U Name It Construction was buried 20-2 by the Bricks who exploded for 10 runs in the first inning.

Bill Hedger drilled three singles; Tim Mason singled and doubled and Mel Kaharian collected a single and double for the winners.

Winner Todd VanBignon allowed only four hits, two of those singles off the bat of Mario Panterno.

The Village Bar collected 16 hits off of a pair of Southside Merchant pitchers and went on to win a 9-2 decision as winning pitcher Jim Johnston served up only four hits. Paul Gayer had two hits and John Jackovich turned in with four safeties, including a single for the winners. Doug Bandy chipped in three hits for the Villagers.

The Villagers also had an easy time of it with The Wheel who averted a shutout with their only run of the game in the fourth inning in a 14-1 defeat. Village broke open what was a close game in the top of the fifth with five runs, then wrapped it up with a six-run seventh.

Paul Gayer had three singles, Mike

Johnson had two and Bon Ross singled and Tripled off of losing pitcher Ron Swan.

Winner Johnston scattered 10 Wheel hits, three of those went to Dana Hannon. Doug Hannon singled and doubled for the losers.

In the only Class B game, Brick's rallied for four runs in the bottom of the fifth to break a 3-all deadlock and went on to jolt the Civitans 8-3. DeSaeger's, the loser, gave up 11 hits, including a homer, triple and single to John Sak. Bill Hedger got three hits for the winners.

Craig Wilcox was the winning pitcher as he twirled a four-hitter.

Jake's is in class by itself Over 35 leader is undefeated

Jack's Sports in the Class of the "Over 35" softball league in Wayne.

Belting the Knights of Columbus 15-4, the Wayne pacesetters racked up their sixth consecutive victory against no losses to remain atop of the league.

Scoring four times in the first inning, Jack's wasn't able to salt the decision away until the late innings as the Knights continued to put pressure on their rivals.

Bobby Guzman and Bob Nowicki each had two hits for the losers, while Jim Law, Phil Luke, Dan Diadiun collected three hits for the winners. Dick Brevin and Norm Beaky also collected two hits for the league-leaders.

In other Over 35 action, Extra Point Bar came out with six less hits than its arch-rival, Jake's, but won a 12-7 decision for their fourth win in seven outings.

Tom Krammer drilled a homer, two singles and chased home three runs for the winners, while Jake's got three hits from Ed Jones who also doubled, and two singles from Tim Toakim who drove in a pair of runs.

Eloise scored twice in the top of the seventh to cut a 12-all tie and win a 14-12 decision from Caldwell's. John Rother-mil drove home three runs with a double and a couple of singles and Joe Kadlec sliced three hits, including a couple of doubles and both Ken and Bob Roberts had two hits for the winners.

John Sterling latched on to two triples for the losers who also received three singles from Brock while Mike Rajkos and Frank Payne got two hits apiece.

Jake's rang up 10 runs in the first inning and banged out 21 hits to bury Ernie's 15-6. Frank Gross and Bill Sexton homered for the winners who also received an outstanding day at the plate from Mike Dexden who had four hits, Joe Loran who had three singles, and Jake Davidson who drove home three runs with a single and double.

Schoolcraft signs Wayne volleyballer

Schoolcraft College has signed six area volleyball players for the fall freshman squad.

Team recruits include Karen Kelley and Amy Lang from Livonia Stevenson; MICKI Truchan from Livonia Bentley; Jill Stellberger from Clarenceville; Nancy Hughes from North Farmington and Deanne Leverenz from the state champion Wayne Memorial team.

According to Coach Mike O'Toole, they represent one of the best first year groups ever assembled at Schoolcraft.

"I am hopeful these athletes will help carry on the fine volleyball tradition that has been established over the past six years," O'Toole said.

That tradition includes qualifying for the national championships in four of the six years and earning a sixth place rating in the N.J.C.A.A. volleyball poll last season.

Coach O'Toole is also proud of developing two Junior College All-Americans, Annette Belanger (1975) and Linda Mix last year, and obtaining scholarships at senior institutions for several players through the years.

"Because Kim O'Neil is our only returning player, there is opportunity for others with the talent, ambition and motivation who would like to join the team," he said. Those interested in plying volleyball should contact Coach O'Toole through the years.

"Because Kim O'Neil is our only returning player, there is opportunity for others with the talent, ambition and motivation who would like to join the team," he said. Those interested in playing volleyball should contact Coach O'Toole through the Schoolcraft physical education office at 591-6400, extension 480.

and went on to beat a stubborn Star Optical team 7-3. Gibson paced the winners with three hits, while Lindon, Bledsoe and Gary Mason each had two for the winners.

Star countered with two hits off of winner Terry Patterson who served up two hits and an RBI to Dave Farmer.

Johnson's broke open a close game with Perkins by scoring four runs in the seventh inning en route to a 9-2 victory over their arch rivals. Gary Schewe drove in two runs with two singles while Morris latched on to three hits - all singles, and Larry Holt chipped in with a single and triple off of loser Craig Noble.

Mike Taskett got to winner Dennis Coewell for a couple of singles and a double.

Wayne Assembly came up with four runs in the second inning while winning pitcher Jim Kolack settled down after a shaky start to edge Greg's 5-2 in their encounter. Greg's scored two runs in the opening inning, but Kolack then blanked Greg's the rest of the way.

Kadlec was the loser, giving up 11 hits. Charlie Pierson accounted for two of the loser's nine hits.

In the only other Wayne Class A ball game, Star's rallied for two runs in the top of the seventh but fell short as Greg's earned a narrow 3-2 victory.

Winning pitcher Greg Pierce had a shutout for six innings before Star staged its surge. Leading the hitting assault on loser Tom Tompkins were Jeff Carter who drilled a run-scoring triple and single, and Keith Drake who had a single and double.

The University of Michigan Hospitals

While nursing at the Michigan Burn Center is demanding work, it is also very rewarding. Daily meetings between nurses, physicians and other staff members are held to coordinate the work done by this professional team. Following cases from admission through discharge, you will use every skill you have acquired, helping patients and their families adjust to severe burn trauma. During the course of treatment, you will play a vital role in training the family to assist with necessary therapy and rehabilitative programs. The Michigan Burn Center is actually a hospital within a hospital, with its own lab, operating room, intensive care facility and the most modern equipment for the treatment of burns. If you would like more information about the rewarding work we do here, please call collect (313) 763-3010 or write to: Nurse Recruitment Office.
